14. September 1968

My dear Fred, -

many thanks for your lines of September 10th.

I have discussed your proposition with my mother and we both agree that you should be authorized to go ahead as suggested. In other words, we accept your proposal.

Though unable fully to judge the situation chez vous, we are inclined to think that two volumes of 400 pages each would be preferable to one huge 800-page volume, which might be rather too difficult to handle. Needless to say, however, the decision rests solely with you.

Katja's health has improved during the summer and it is only to be hoped that she won't be recklessly ambitious and overdoing things - as she has been in the recent past.

I keep doing my best - on two crutches. Even so I am better off than poor Czechoslovakia. Which of course is not saying a lot.

With kindest regards

yours very sincerely,
