Dear Mr. Spierdijk.

Upon my return from Germany yesterday I found both, your and Lotte Goslar's notes. How gladly should I have written the suggested article! Unfortunately, though, our Schiller-travels have played havoc with all that needed my attention, and I am faced with an over-abundance of work.

I wonder whether you happen to know the Swiss picture magazine "Du"? They are about to publish a special issue on the occasion of T.M.'s 80th birthday containing an article of mine. As "Du" - notwithstanding its excellent pictures - is a rather popular sort of publication, and as, besides, my own contribution had to conform to ~~with~~ a number of editorial requests, I am not certain that the piece in question would do for "De Telegraaf". Even so, I shall send you a copy just as soon as one is available. I might say in advance that I had been asked to write a personal rather than a literary article. Hence, - in case you are at all interested, - I'd propose that you commission somebody else to take care of the literary angle whilst reserving the human side for me. My piece for "Du" covers about 5 typewritten pages (something like 1250 words). Any cuts that you might deem necessary would find me resigned to accept them.

With thanks for your kind interest ,

yours very sincerely

ERIKA MANN
