Dearest Lucile, -

it's a monstrous shame and I am accordingly contrite. You've been sweet enough to send me something pretty and to write a few words every Christmas since 1960, and I utterly failed to do anything about it. But then, I have been sick ever since September 1960, and while this dreary fact doesn't constitute a real excuse, at least it furnishes some sort of an explanation. Lotte the Gosse has just been told the nature of my tiresome complaint and will convey the information to you.

On my own part I merely wish to thank you and to congratulate you on your steadily mounting successes. Had I known that - and when - you remarried, I certainly would have overcome my various silly handicaps and told you that I was very happy to hear the good news. Actually, I still am. Moreover, I am certain that Rimsky would have wanted you to do just that and that he would be pleased to know that you were still "Dutch" at heart.

All the best to you and yours.

Much love from
