Dearest Agnes, -

it's high - but very high - time for me to tell you that I was very much aggrieved to hear about your sickness and that I do hope that you have long since fully and splendidly recovered.

You asked about "our mutual friend in Moskau" and her criticism of "our" book. Those asiatics, however, keep being slow, and all she has done so far is to write a very positive review on the first volume of the letters. I feel certain that she'll do even better on the second volume. As soon as I have heard from her in this context I shall let you know.

I am about to leave for Oxford, England, for that operation. Actually, I am flying tomorrow. My mother will accompany me. It's an ugly thing to face but I am full of confidence regarding my bone-man and really think he'll do a good job. Just in case you should wish to write me a postcard, my address is to be:

Nuffield Orthopaedic Centre
Private Wards, Room 22
Headington/Oxford, England

With much love

yours as ever affectionately,
