Dear Kay Brown, -

I wonder what has become or is becoming of our good old musical. The only thing I learned was not very encouraging. Sometime last July Peter Shaffer wrote me from London that he had been commissioned to write the play and that he'd very much like to come and see me in order to talk matters over. A date in August had been agreed upon when Shaffer wrote again saying that he'd had a letter from Perkins' lawyer ordering him not to move until further notice. Shaffer thought that somehow Perkins had lost interest.

I'd much appreciate your opinion on the situation and would be very glad if you'd let me have a few lines.

Many thanks in advance and all my best wishes for the Taylor opening on Broadway. Isn't it a pity about Bergner? Well, these things will happen with that sort of star. Darvas, though far less miraculously enchanting will doubtless prove to be much easier to handle.

Yours as ever cordially
